Professional Biography: Michelle Campbell is an American actor and voice actor raised in Orlando, Florida. A former competitive swimmer for over a decade, she discovered her passion for acting while training at the Meisner-based Art's Sake Acting Studio in Orlando. She went on to study Creative Writing and Theatre at Florida State University.

Following the guidance of mentor Taylor Sheridan, Campbell relocated from Los Angeles to New Mexico in 2017 and quickly established herself in the region, accumulating more than 20 screen credits in five years. She has appeared in projects with Tom Hanks, Kevin Costner, Emma Stone, Rhea Seehorn, and Rosario Dawson.

Based between Los Angeles and New Mexico, Campbell also works extensively as a voice actor in animation, video games, and commercials.
